

Process control chart

Following chart shows how the development of linkingg project has evolved in the period between September and January.

Horizontal line: it represents the flow of time, expressed in months.

Vertical line: it represents the number of commits, that is the stability parameter to analyze.

It can be deducted that this project has had a trend of two commits per month.

